When is the 10th ICTV report about Adenoviridae going to be uploaded here? Secondly, how I may cite this report in my thesis?

Your kind guidance on the subject matter shall highly be appreciated.

Iqra,

The ICTV Report can be cited in several ways:

1. Direct citation of the report web site: <https://ictv.global/report/>
2. Citation of the Journal of General Virology (JGV) family profile when published

(<https://www.microbiologyresearch.org/content/ictv-virus-taxonomy-profiles>).

3. Citation of the editorial published in JGV that discusses the Report and Profile:

Davison AJ. Journal of General Virology – Introduction to 'ICTV Virus Taxonomy Profiles'. J Gen Virol. 2017 Jan;98(1):1. doi: 10.1099/jgv.0.000686. PubMed 28218575; PubMed Central PMCID: PMC5370390.

As for publication of the Report chapter (and Profile) of the family Adenoviridae, I do not believe that publication will take place anytime soon. But the 9th Report chapter on Adenoviridae is available online: https://talk.ictvonline.org/ictv-reports/ictv_9th_report/dsdna-viruses-2011/w/dsdna_viruses/93/adenoviridae.

Best regards,

Elliot

Dear Iqra,

Just to let you know that we are expecting the Adenoviridae chapter of the 10th Report to be submitted at the end of this year, and so it should be published two or three months after that.

Best wishes,

Donald

Dear Dr. Smith,

That's a great news. I am looking forward to this publication.

Thanks,

Iqra

Dear Dr. Smith,

I am anxiously waiting for the ICTV 10th report's chapter of Adenoviruses. Can we hope to have it this month?

Thanks,

Iqra

Dear Iqra,

I'm afraid that the Adenoviridae Report has not been submitted yet - so it is going to be a while yet before you can cite it.

Best wishes,

Donald

Dear Elliot,

Is there any publicly available reports on poxviruses in 10th release?

Regards, Subir

No, I am afraid not. Perhaps sometime in the next year.
